

NEIGHBORHOOD HISTORY

Thompson Washington D.C. is located in the Navy Yard neighborhood within the Capitol Riverfront. This waterfront development is in the U.S. Capitol's backyard and sits steps from the Anacostia Riverwalk Trail.

Navy Yard, with its beginnings in 1799, is the U.S. Navy's oldest shore establishment. The original boundaries located on 9th and M Streets were established in 1800. The boundary walls were marked by a white brick wall which can still be seen today. Under the command of Captain Tingey, the "Yard" progressed rapidly. During the 1960s, Navy Yard's function changed from an active naval base to what is now the National Museum of the U.S. Navy.

This neighborhood's rich history and industrial past spurred the inspiration for the "warehouse" style facade. This contemporary 11-story hotel is designed by D.C.'s Studio Architecture.

Thompson Washington D.C. is a great locale to explore the Navy Yard and all of Washington's best sights and neighborhoods.
